PCAlarm Personal Crack+

PCAlarm Personal will display an alarm clock in your system tray which will tell you whether the alarm went off or not. You can select the colour of the alarm and set alarms for various events and conditions, such as games, work, politics, movies, TV, etc. If you want to be notified with an SMS, there is an option in PCAlarm Personal to send notification via SMS. Once PCAlarm is set, the SMS will be sent once the alarm went off. You can set up multiple alarms for multiple events and get an SMS notification for all of them, all at the same time. PCAlarm Personal can do several things not offered by any other personal alarm clock: If an alarm is set, it can go off a different time everytime, It can have an "All day" mode, which can go off from 9:00am to 9:00am. This is to be used for those special times when you can't sleep, for example, while watching TV. If an alarm is set with a specific date, the alarm will be set for that date only. Each day you set an alarm, it will go off that same day if not set in the "all day" mode. It can output sound from MIDI file, and supports 3 different style of sound (sounds): "silent alarm", "rock song" and "screaming". You can choose which one sounds better to you. The final function is a "whisper" function. This is to be used when you are sleeping and your alarm sounds a lot. To turn this feature on, go to the "Sound" section, and you can select this option "Whisper" there. It does not do anything..I tried it all day..As soon as I press up to switch from "silent" to the other sounds, or i press it to mute the alarm after 10 mins etc..it stops..wondering if theres a setting and I did not see it..tried to login to the computer but as I had no serial number it would not let me...anyone know what the problem might be.. Ok... that is not the first time that this happens to me. A few times as far back as when I had Windows XP.. and as I've upgraded now to Vista. But I think the problem is with
