Subs are falling out of the sky and it's up to you to destroy them. Put your reflexes to the test, using tight yet simple controls to dodge missiles, collect ammo and rack up kills. Verse a range of enemies and bosses and aim for highscore greatness.If you wish to watch your weight, you should avoid foods that are full of empty calories but high in fat and sugar. Satisfy your hunger with foods that are low in fat and cholesterol but high in fiber, such as beans, legumes, and whole-grain breads and cereals. When you eat, try to include a variety of protein, carbohydrates, and fats. This is essential to keep blood sugar levels even. Fats, especially unsaturated ones, can lower cholesterol levels. The more fruit and vegetable your kids eat, the lower their risk of heart disease. Do not allow your kids to drink soda or other beverages with high-fructose corn syrup. Fructose can lead to weight gain in kids and adults, and it is not a good substitute for glucose. To give your kids foods with lots of fiber, try some whole-grain foods, such as whole-grain cereals, breads, and crackers. Avoid giving foods high in sugar to kids who do not have a sweet tooth. This could result in mood disorders and the development of cavities. Try giving them candy only in small amounts. Kids who are already active should consider increasing their intake of fruits and vegetables. This will improve their health and make them stronger. Children who are in the beginning stage of puberty need to avoid foods with high amounts of added fat, such as fried foods. Try to cook with olive oil instead. For kids who have diabetes, one of the best ways to keep their blood sugar steady is to follow their schedule for meals. It is recommended to eat foods they would normally eat, at the same time they usually eat them. It is also best to avoid foods that are high in sugar, as sugar will spike their blood sugar. An important meal for kids is lunch. Offer a balanced meal, including protein, carbs, and fats. Using oils and fats is also recommended for kids with diabetes.1870 in rail transport Events January events January 1 – The first train passes through London's new underground tube network, which continues to use steam locomotives. My New Additions & Bug Fixes! 9 April 2015:Happy belated Valentine's Day everyone! And thanks to everyone who bought over 90K copies of my last release! I really appreciate the support. But I'm back to update on all my upcoming releases. These are just some of the highlights of what I've been working on. So I'm finally done with BO2: PC : Mac : Please be sure to check those files out! So I've been working on a video game called H2O: [click] (This is an underwater adventure game that will take place over three locations with a plot centric story as you piece together the history and mystery of an underwater "Devil's Pit" or an Underwater Temple. You'll be adventuring and exploring to find clues, artifacts and solve puzzles to complete your mission. This includes a naval combat system as well as underwater exploration/rogue-like missions. Next I'm working on an action shooter game called Proteus : [click] (This game is a heavily futuristic version of "The Machine", where you must deal with hostile AI's and eliminate them in order to progress in levels. It's an arcade/space shooter/shooter-lite hybrid. And I've been working on this new adventure game which is more of a metroidvania than anything else, called Banished (It's a first-person action RPG where you'll be exploring the environments and crafting weapons, armor, etc to combat through hordes of terrifying monsters. It's pretty freaky at times! So there you have it! Thanks again to everyone who buys over 1 Million copies of my games! PS: Due to the recent news about my friend, I'll be pausing development on the games I mentioned above for the time being. 09 March 2015:Thanks for all the Steam reviews and ratings! I'm trying to reach Gold status before I is an American man who has been making videos in Indonesia since 2004. A few of his videos have made it to YouNow, a video-oriented social network that has 100 million viewers around the world. BiuBiu brings viewers fun clips, combined with upbeat music and reactions from audience members. His enthusiastic, quick-witted manner and presentation of comedy is what make him stand out. He is the creator of the 2008 web series called 'beaver games' or 'bb Games', which won an award from the Seattle International Film Festival. Now, he is a YouNow celebrity, and regularly appears on other social networks like Apple, Facebook, YouTube. On March 5, 2014, he also launched a new TEDx presentation called 'Be Your Own Fan'. BiuBiu's career has taken him from a broke college student, to a multimillion-dollar businessman. Today, he is still working on a career that will make him wealthy beyond his dreams, and he hopes to pave the way for others like him who want their own fan base, and their own empire to climb. You have worked for a year selling tips on the web. How did you know there was potential for you to make money selling tips? The site we sell tips on was already doing well, having made $2,000 in a week. We have found it to be a massive, and very profitable site. As I've already mentioned, we have never needed to advertise or make a penny. The tips we sell are for others to make money, and this is our way of paying it forward, and giving back to the community. You can just think of it as a free advertisement! It's a win-win situation. Having read your CV, I noticed you had started building games. Back in high school, your teacher told you the games you like are like math, geometry, and English. Was it like that for you? How did you learn programming? I learned programming like most people learned math in school. I taught myself how to program as a kid. I was a computer science major in high school and then did a double major in computer science and journalism in university. What made you decide to go into games? I'm definitely a gamer. I played the first

Mario Kart way back in 1994! The funniest thing about the first video game I played was that it had a red shell, but no blue shell. I had a blue shell, and two red shells. So I would

Reflector: Bug Hunt is a top-down, bullet-hell, sci-fi top-down shooter, the game is played in first-person through a web app. You play as Haym-Em, a soldier equipped with a special suit, the reflector suit, and equipped with only one weapon – a massive energy rifle that fires photons. Your only defense is the suit's ability to reflect incoming fire back at your opponents. As Haym-Em, you must navigate hazards, dodge hazards, deflect hazards, catch hazards and avoid hazards. Some hazards will destroy the reflector suit, which means you must use all your reflexes and technological knowledge to survive. You can play with 4 players locally or online. Different weapons and modes of play are available for each game setting. Controls: Controls are in 5th person using the WASD, Arrow keys and mouse, but are very different from other games. Instead of moving a character and firing a weapon at different speeds, Haym-Em's movements are all slow, and so is the firing of his weapon. Instead, he can only dodge to avoid projectiles. The controls are designed for players to dodge projectiles and change their trajectories without having to use the mouse or change their position. Players can flick them to change their trajectory. Players can lock the camera to a specific position and view it from that position. This keeps the player in the middle of their enemies and is useful when looking for a weak spot in the enemies armor or parts that you can grab on. Game Modes: Standard: Deathmatch Race: Each player will take turns shooting it out in a race to kill the other. The first player to kill another player wins. Arena: Two player teams will be pitted against each other in a game of capture the flag. Each team must protect their flag while the other team tries to destroy it. Once destroyed, the flag will respawn at its next spawn point. Deathmatch is a game mode with no ultimate purpose. The players will be killed or saved by random events as the game progresses. Race is a game mode where players will start in teams and play a game of capture the flag. Once the flag is captured, the winning team will respawn the flag at its next spawn point. Tournament is a game mode where players can choose to enter a tournament or a game. If they enter a game, they will be matched against opponents for that game. Tournament games will
