Sandra, that gallery is gorgeous!Mormon Couple Takes Up Cross-Country Bike Route Through U.S. Enlarge this image toggle caption Courtesy of Marion Allen Courtesy of Marion Allen Marion and Marven Allen are two young Mormon couples who've traveled 1,600 miles — about the distance of two trips to the moon — to cycle across the country. They had no idea where they would end up, or the person they'd meet along the way. Their plans: jump on their bikes and ride south at a blistering pace. "We have no itinerary," Marion says. "We just get in and go, and see where it goes." Marven adds, "We just haven't come to any decision or thoughts on where we would stop." Their Route Map: Utah, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York. Enlarge this image toggle caption Courtesy of Marion Allen Courtesy of Marion Allen For nearly two months, the couple has been riding. They've driven their bikes in the back of a Ford Explorer along highways and back roads and gone in the car when they needed to rest. They've taken hundreds of photographs, done postcard-quality paintings and even once made a souvenir pot of hot chocolate. "We try to keep it as relaxed as we can while we're traveling," says Marion. Enlarge this image toggle caption Courtesy of Marion Allen Courtesy of Marion Allen Marven's first taste of fame came from a short video they made of their journey. Their friends and neighbors clapped and cheered as they rode through their streets in McCalla, Ala. After that, when they would go to church, their pastor, the Rev. Rodney Givens, would talk to them for 30 minutes or so about their trip. Marven says most people in their neighborhood have been overwhelmingly friendly. "There were a lot of people who actually came out and waved and said 'Hello' to us, and that was really nice," he says.
