The L-arginine-NO pathway regulates natriuretic peptide-dependent vasodilation. The endogenous vasodilator nitric oxide (NO) is synthesized from the amino acid L-arginine by NO synthase (NOS). The NOS cofactor tetrahydrobiopterin (BH4) is critical for the formation of bioactive NO. The arginine-NO pathway is involved in the regulation of peripheral vascular function. The present study aimed to elucidate the role of the L-arginine-NO pathway in the regulation of vasodilation induced by natriuretic peptides. We used the NOS inhibitor, N(omega)-nitro-L-arginine methyl ester (L-NAME), and the BH4 precursor, tetrahydrobiopterin (BH4). In male Wistar rats, we assessed the effect of NO inhibition and BH4 precursor administration on natriuretic peptide-induced increase in forearm blood flow (FBF) by venous occlusion plethysmography. Intravenous bolus injection of natriuretic peptides (atrial natriuretic peptide, ANP; brain natriuretic peptide, BNP) significantly increased FBF to 167.3 +/- 8.8 and 168.5 +/- 9.6% of basal FBF (n = 15), respectively. After NOS inhibition with L-NAME, the ability of natriuretic peptides to increase FBF was significantly decreased to 112.0 +/- 5.4% (n = 8) of baseline. Pretreatment with BH4 (3 mg/kg i.v.) restored natriuretic peptide-induced vasodilation to the level observed without BH4 pretreatment (135.1 +/- 8.5% of baseline, n = 8). The L-arginine-NO pathway participates in the regulation of natriuretic peptide-induced
