Field of the Invention The present invention is directed to an improved electrophotographic imaging member having improved processes and compositions for making such a member. In particular, the present invention is directed to a lithium electrode matrix for electrophotographic imaging members that includes a polymer binder. 2. Description of Related Art In the art of electrophotography an electrophotographic plate comprising a photoconductive insulating layer on a conductive layer is imaged by first uniformly electrostatically charging the surface of the photoconductive insulating layer. The plate is then exposed to a pattern of activating electromagnetic radiation such as light, which selectively dissipates the charge in the illuminated areas of the photoconductive insulating layer while leaving behind an electrostatic latent image in the non-illuminated area. This electrostatic latent image may then be developed to form a visible image by depositing finely divided electroscopic toner particles, for example, from a developer composition, onto the surface of the photoconductive insulating layer. The resulting visible toner image can be transferred to a suitable receiving member, such as paper. Recently, certain semiconductive materials, more commonly known as se b7e8fdf5c8
