If you're going to use After Effects, be sure to get a trial. Some of the features in the trial version are important in learning to use it, while other features can be "unlocked" or purchased as a plug-in that is separate from the program. * * * # Note Adobe After Effects is a 32-bit software application and requires a compatible computer with at least a 4-gigahertz (GHz) processor. This invention relates to a product dispensing package having an internal product space for containing a product, a dispensing opening formed in a wall of the product space for dispensing the product, and a membrane over the product space to prevent the product from escaping from the product space when the package is closed. It is known to provide a dispensing package having a package wall defining a product space for containing a product, a dispensing opening formed in the package wall to permit dispensing of the product from the package, and a membrane covering the product space over the dispensing opening to prevent the product from being prematurely dispensed from the package. Examples of such packages are disclosed in U.S. Pat. Nos. 4,411,429, 4,742,805, 4,760,877, 4,985,280, 5,061,259, 5,203,799, 5,341,887, 5,363,640, 5,445,586, 5,564,775 and 5,812,304. With such known packages, the membranes are usually made of a plastic film which is heat-sealable. Such a heat-sealable membrane can include a heat seal pattern extending from the dispensing opening to the periphery of the dispensing opening to permit a heat-sealing apparatus to heat-seal the film to itself or to another film or a web, such as a bag or a sleeve, during the packaging operation. However, these heat-sealable membranes are subject to different stresses, depending on the particular pressure exerted by the hot-melt adhesive on the membrane during the heat-sealing operation. Under high pressures, the membrane may be almost completely sealed to itself or to the package body by the adhesive, while under lower pressures, the adhesive may not completely fill the void spaces between the membrane and the body of the package. In the former case, the membrane should be separated from the package after the package has been opened, and in the latter case, the package should be opened prior to dispensing the product. Also, after the package has been opened, the membrane must be manually peeled off to allow the product to be dispensed. In accordance with this invention, a product dispensing package includes a package body having a wall defining a product space for containing a product, a dispensing opening formed in the wall of the package body to permit dispensing of the product from the package, a membrane covering the product space over the dispenses

Q: How to get rid of the annoying Alert Boxes in Android apps? I've just been notified that one of my apps has been "non-compliant" and I need to remove the Alert Boxes. The web site tells me how to do this by Viewing /Searching for the Info.plist file. Find the "NSAlertLaunch" key, and add the string "com.somecompany.whatever.bundle". However, I am still left with an unacceptably long Alert Box to be displayed to the user. How can I get rid of them without adding a custom alert box? A: You can hide the UIAlertView with
