filters to enhance your photos Edit RAW images to make adjustments Create and print high-quality images on the web Though Photoshop is capable of so much, it is the software's limitations that can often be its biggest strength. With so much power at your fingertips, it is easy to miscalculate or make huge mistakes. It's also easy to create an illusion when manipulated images are placed into a high-contrast and dark environment. Fortunately, Photoshop is user-friendly and has extensive help files for beginners, while other advanced features can be learned through the tutorials available. Use these Photoshop tutorials to get your creative urges flowing. Master Photoshop Layers in Photoshop are the building blocks of an image. They are a place to store and track separate elements that are manipulated. Most editing is done in layer groups. As you work, Photoshop creates a copy of the image that is inside the layer group that is on top of the copy. Beginning with a clean slate is easier than trying to undo a bad edit. Each time a new layer is created it is automatically placed on top of the other layers. If you want to undo the edit, simply change the layer order. You must use the move tool and drag the layers to a new position. If you drag it onto another layer, the layers will merge. Photoshop allows for basic image manipulation at the document level in the tools palette. The most common tools available are: Move

It's in the expressions that make up the many ways that we communicate with one another. To understand how I feel about my current line of employment can be easily done if you have taken a look at my blogroll on the right. The top four sites on the list are from my industry, the bottom four are from my

The feature is being made available today, and it is currently only supported by Chromebase, a single-port, all-in-one Chrome OS-powered PC. The feature comes from Google's new payments API which allows web apps to make in-browser purchases. Before today, owners of Google's Chrome OS-powered devices would have to go into their device's settings to authorize third-party apps to make in-browser purchases. Now that functionality is built into the operating system. Chromebase gets access to a web app's checkout page To make an in-browser purchase using the new Google payments API, you'll have to have a web app you're interested in making a purchase on serve content with the checkout link. You'll then need to visit the web app's own site with your

Chrome browser, navigate to the site's checkout page, and tap the blue "Pay with Google" button. The feature is being rolled out to users today, and it will allow users to purchase a subscription to a web app such as The Wall Street Journal, The Verge, or Taylor Swift's Spotify subscription. You can test it out for yourself here.NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway hero Audra McDonald has been appointed the recipient of this year's Tony Award for best leading actress in a musical — all for her performances in the 2015 revival of Porgy and B

Q: CURL Request Headers missing on second request I am running a simulation on a personal project on AWS under Ubuntu 16.04. I am using CURLOPT_HEADER to set a custom header before my request. I made a single request to simulate a payload, but when I send a second request I get this error: cURL request failed: Cannot connect to remote server I am not receiving any errors with the simulation itself. I am able to simulate a request and receive the response just fine on the first request. I am trying to send a second request to simulate another payload. Here is my code: $header = "Authorization: Bearer $code "; $header.= "X-Foo: bar "; $header.= "Content-Type: application/json "; // Send request on first simulation only // Get response $ch = curl_init(); curl_setopt($ch, CURLOPT_URL, ''); curl_setopt($ch, CURLOPT_HEADER, true); curl_setopt($ch, CURLOPT_RETURNTRANSFER, 1); $response = curl_exec($ch); curl_close($ch); $header.= "Authorization: Bearer $code "; $header.= "X-Foo: bar "; $header.= "Content-Type: application/json "; // Send request on second simulation // Get response $ch = curl_init(); curl_setopt($ch, CURLOPT_URL, ''); curl_setopt($ch, CURLOPT_RETURNTRANSFER, 1); curl_setopt($ch, CURLOPT_HEADER, $header); curl_setopt($ch, CURLOPT_HTTPHEADER, $header); $response = curl_exec($ch); curl_close($ch); I tried adding the $header to the options array and setting it as a value instead of a string, but I still receive the same error. I have verified that the header is sent and is in the right place, but it is just not being sent along with the request
