1.5.4.5. 1.5.4.6. 1.5.4.7. MyVSTEdit has an excellent find-and-replace function that can be used to replace any of the existing source field values with new values, (and I've been using it to create fields to hold the source field values). You can use the same process to create new fields to hold target field values. I would suggest creating the new fields just before you import the source data, in case they make the VST not work correctly (which is all too common, especially if the source data is not formatted properly). If this still doesn't work for you, it seems that you may have a corrupt VST program. If this is the case, you can run the VST program in a VST host (rather than in a DAW), and then save the.vst 6d1f23a050
