Parkinsonism is a common neurological disorder that mainly affects elderly individuals and is characterized by slowness of movement, tremors, rigidity, and postural instability. Although not life-threatening, this disorder has a significant impact on the quality of life. Parkinson's disease (PD) is the most common type of movement disorder, affecting 1% of the population older than 60 years.\[[[@ref1]\] Majority of PD patients also suffer from nonmotor symptoms such as anxiety, depression, sleep disorders, cognitive disturbances, and autonomic dysfunction.\[[[@ref2]\] Migraine is also a common chronic disorder, in which the hallmark is recurrent episodes of disabling throbbing headache, often with nausea, photophobia, phonophobia, and severe pain.\[[[@ref3]\]

Although the association between migraine and PD was first reported in 1985, it has remained controversial.\[[[@ref4]\] There are concerns regarding "migraine-induced levodopainduced dyskinesia."[\\[\[@ref5\]\\]](#)

There is an increasing trend toward the use of biobehavioral interventions for the treatment of PD and for its associated nonmotor symptoms, including depression.[\\[\[@ref6\]\\]](#) Majority of PD patients also suffer from depression and there is a bidirectional relationship between depression and PD. \[[@ref7]\] The management of depression in PD is especially challenging for neurologists since it is a complex and long-term condition. Therefore, the choice of therapy is often guided by the severity of depression c6a93da74d
