The last day I'm going to talk about Steinberg's new Cubase 5.1 (update)

and I'm not going to show and tell. I'm not going to go into a lot of detail on how the new Cubase 5.1 works. When Steinberg first started developing the new Cubase 5.1 update they were adamant that the new Cubase. I wouldn't expect a developer to admit to the fact that they'd been lazy with their software but. There were three main reasons I was told that they wanted to abandon their legacy of having cubase hardware based plugins being able to run on different platforms. The first reason was because developers had been doing a good job of porting their Cubase HW based plug-ins to new platforms. Because the DAW is so heavily tied into audio tracking and audio features (stretchy audio, interactive mixer, audio stream control), its really not possible to just port the software out like you can with a PC based DAW. The new Steinberg Cubase is a very different kind of DAW and the porting effort would have needed to be a massive undertaking. In the past, Steinberg would tell their techs to check around the internals of other DAWs to see how they did things.
