Los Angeles businesses and residents are increasingly viewing the Los Angeles River as a valuable economic asset and the main artery that connects downtown Los Angeles to the greater region. The project highlights how the river is a critical connection in the vast network of streets, freeways, railroads, parks, and bridges that transport people and goods in Los Angeles. ABOUT THE PROJECT Million Dollar View transforms the oft-neglected Los Angeles River from an "eyesore" to a functional urban amenity. The project combines pre-existing and new infrastructure to revitalize a portion of the riverfront, turning it from a parking lot to a thriving central corridor that integrates the river with downtown. COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT Throughout the project, the American River Parkway was utilized as a dedicated public space, linking the river with the surrounding neighborhoods and downtown. This project was the first on the river to incorporate the pathway for pedestrians and cyclists, creating an accessible urban center for people to travel along the river, providing a safer means for Angelenos to connect with the river. The River Crossing project also facilitated the re-creation of a riverfront pedestrian bridge across a freeway interchange with a vision for intermodal transport, economic development and water quality improvement. The American River Parkway now connects a total of 16 neighborhoods and communities, all of which are served by the project, including: AROUND LOS ANGELES OTHER PROJECTS River Crossing is a riverfront pedestrian bridge linking the Central Avenue and Devonshire Interchange in downtown Los Angeles. The simple, modern and reliable audio player Sharp Tune offers a playlist and a directory tree view as well as a desktop notification to show you that a song is playing. Related Software Simple and elegant music player Sharp Tune is a lightweight and cross-platform audio player that puts emphasis on simplicity. Developed with the Electron framework, the tool is free and open-source, available not only for Windows but also for Linux users. Installing the utility shouldn't be an issue since the setup procedure follows standard steps. As far as the interface is concerned, Sharp Tune adopts a theme with red, white and black accents, showing the navigation controls on the left side and the playlist on the right. Select a folder to play all tracks Audio tracks cannot be added one at a time. Instead, you have to use the built-in file explorer from the "File" menu (or by pressing Ctrl+F) to find and choose a directory which contains all songs you want to listen to. Playlists are automatically created this way, so you can check out the artist and track name of each file, along with its position in the playlist. Only basic navigation controls are available, giving you the possibility to pause and resume the song, play the previous or next track in the list, adjust the volume level, or seek a position. There are no other special options available, so you can minimize Sharp Tune to the taskbar and carry on with your typical desktop activity while listening to songs. It worked smoothly in our tests on the latest Windows edition. Nevertheless, we hope that next updates will bring more features to the table.Q: How do I find elements that do not contain a particular element?
